

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and device for enabling Internet users to communicate with one another or access information more easily, without requiring lengthy, hard-to-remember addresses. The method also enables personnel and resource

5 management by providing easily updated databases containing information related to the resource or person of interest. By using an associated telephone number associated with the person, or resource, as an Internet address or URL, messages are sent, or access to information is enabled, by routing the message or request for information to the appropriate location.